CAREER

Annett Kaufmann is a German international table tennis player who rose through the junior ranks with European and World Youth titles, becoming the first European female to win the U-19 World Youth Championships singles crown in 2024. She represented Germany at the Paris Olympic Games and has since established herself as a key member of the senior national team, winning back-to-back German national singles titles (2024, 2025) and contributing to Germany's European Team Championship victories in 2023 and 2025. Her senior career continues to build through consistent appearances at WTT Champions and Contender events.

LEGACY AND FUTURE GOALS

Kaufmann is widely seen as one of Germany's brightest post-Timo Boll era talents, already leaving her mark with historic youth titles and national senior successes. As of 2025, she is a central figure in the German team with ambitions to climb the world singles rankings, lead her country in major team events, and contend for medals at the World Championships and Olympic Games in the coming years.
