CAREER

Miłosz Redzimski began playing table tennis at the age of five, following in the footsteps of his father Tomasz Redzimski, a former national champion and coach. After climbing through Poland's youth ranks, Miłosz quickly transitioned into elite international competition, earning European youth titles and making his Olympic debut in Paris at just 17. In 2025, he firmly established himself at senior level: winning the Polish national title, reaching the Champions League Final-4 with Bogoria, and breaking into the top 40 in the ITTF world rankings. His WTT campaign included key victories and main draw appearances against top global names.

LEGACY AND FUTURE GOALS

As of December 2025, Miłosz Redzimski stands as one of the fastest-rising players in European table tennis. His breakthrough into senior-level success has made him a role model for young Polish athletes. A national champion and European podium regular, he symbolizes the next generation of Polish excellence in the sport.

Looking ahead, Miłosz is targeting further climbs in the world rankings – with ambitions to break into the top 30 and beyond. He also aims for deeper runs in WTT Champions and ITTF events, medals at major continental championships, and continued Champions League success with Bogoria.
